Augusta and the Civil War Symposium Series 1862 - Making War: Southern Industrialization, November 9-10

Please join us for the second in an annual series of five Civil War Symposiums each focusing on a different aspect and year of the conflict. This year's theme is "Making War: Southern Industrialization." The symposium begins this Friday, November 9 at the Morris Museum with the Dr. Edward J. Cashin Memorial Woodrow Wilson Lecture. This portion of the symposium is free and open to the public. The symposium continues on Saturday, November 10 at the Kroc Center with more lectures, lunch, and Civil War-themed boat tour of the Augusta Canal.

The cost to attend Saturday's events is $30. Please RSVP by calling 706-823-0440 ext. 7.

Endangered Properties 2013 Press Conference

Join Historic Augusta at our press conference to announce the newest properties listed to the Endangered Properties List.

Now in its seventh year, the list aims to make the community aware about significant historic resources that are threatened with neglect, vacancy, or demolition. The press conference will be held Tuesday November 20th at 10:00am at 920 Greene Street, a former Endangered Property, which has been successfully rehabilitated into income producing apartments. A ribbon cutting will be included and a walk through of the house will be available. Contact us with any questions you may have and we hope to see you on November 20th.
